SACRAMENTO, Calif., Jul 18, 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE) ----Clean Energy, Inc. (1998 Nevada) (PINK SHEETS:CLER) under its affordable electric vehicle (EV: 37.02, +1.52, +4.28%) division, CLEAN ELECTRIC, will open its first 100% electric vehicle dealership in the Sacramento region of Northern California.

"The local community has been very helpful and excited about the prospects of creating new jobs, increasing the sales-tax revenue base for the region, and having access to our new 100% electric vehicles", stated Harold Jahn, President and CEO of Clean Electric, Inc.

Auto firms including Chrysler LLC, Ford Motor Co. (F: NYSE), and General Motors Corp. (GM: NYSE) have seen statewide auto sales decline; many California auto dealerships have been forced to either close or consolidate.

Clean Electric has an opportunity to choose between several of these vacant prime dealership locations throughout California on favorable lease terms.

With all of the closures, hundreds of highly qualified and experienced auto dealership personnel are available for Clean Electric's new hires including administration, finance, sales representatives, parts/service technicians, and dealership management positions.

Interviews are in progress for our first Clean Electric dealership location. We plan to hire several talented people from these former dealerships as we expand throughout California.

Our 100% electric sedan capable of highway speeds is scheduled for release for sale in fall 2008.

The sedan will be made available to the public once our staff is fully trained and able to provide exceptional service to our customers.

Americans want a comfortable transition to an electric vehicle without giving up the freedom of regular driving conditions. An economy driven by 100% electric vehicles could allow the United States to become foreign oil independent within 10 years. Driving electric costs less than 1/4 the cost of gasoline.

We encourage the public and vehicle fleet buyers to register at www.cleanelectric.net.

Those registered will have priority to view, test drive, purchase, or lease our 2008 models as each vehicle is publicly released.
